M'NARY-HAUGEN FARM MEASURE AGAIN VETOED

Language Used Fully as Emphatic as That in Previous Veto Message

EQUALIZATION FEE IS "SALES TAX" SAYS VETO

Centers Attack Upon Constitutionality of Measure Submitted Second Time

WASHINGTON, May 23, (AP)—The McNary-Haugen farm relief bill was vetoed by President Coolidge today with language fully as emphatic as he used in disapproving the measure a year ago.

Centering his attack upon the constitutionality of the bill, the president informed the senate, to which it was returned, that the equalization fee of the bill was "a sales tax" and that no board could resist the political pressure which would be placed upon it to boost prices above normal.

The bill, Mr. Coolidge said, embodied a "formidable array of perils for agriculture which are all the more menacing because of their being observed in a maze of ponderously futile bureaucratic paraphernalia."

Using strong terms, throughout the veto, Mr. Coolidge applied to the bill such terms as "cruelly deceptive," "repugnant," "fallacious."

The fate of agricultural relief this season now rests squarely with congress. It has a choice of passing the bill over Mr. Coolidge's veto, or bringing out a measure more closely designed along lines agreeable to him.

So far as the political aspects of the situation are affected by the veto, it assures that, in the event congress fails to act, the whole farm relief problem will be presented to the coming presidential conventions as a vexing question which promises to figure largely in the campaign and on which the Republican leadership itself is sharply divided.

Like last year, the veto was accompanied by a lengthy report by Attorney General Sargent holding the measure to be unconstitutional.

Senator McNary, Republican of Oregon, co-author of the bill, announced he would take no action on the veto today. Under the rules action must be delayed until the veto is enrolled.

What course will be pursued is still problematical, he said, with a division of sentiment as to whether the bill should be returned to the agricultural committee for reconstruction or the veto voted upon in an effort to override the president.

FATHER AND SON SHOT DEFENDING COLORADO BANK

John Parrish and A. N. Parrish Killed as They Open Fire On Robbers

ONE OF BANDITS SHOT BUT MAKES HIS ESCAPE

Quartet Get Away After Taking More Than Seven Thousand from Bank

Lamar, Col., May 23. (P)—A raid by four robbers on the First National bank of Lamar today ended in the death of John Parrish, cashier, and his father, A. N. Parrish, after a gun battle with the desperadoes in defense of their institution.

Entering the bank shortly after 1 p. m. when only two patrons were in the building, the robbers unloaded a volley of shots that caused the death of the two men who stood up with their weapons to meet the raiders almost before the command to "hold up" had been given. One of the robbers was wounded by a shot fired by the younger Parrish and carried into a waiting automobile in which the robbers escaped with about $7,000 in currency and some liberty bonds.

A posse headed by Sheriff L. E. Aldeman took up pursuit of the robbers soon after the robbery and joined by a company of national guardsmen stationed here.

LINDBERGH JOINS AIR CORPORATION

Enters Business as Technical Committee Chairman of Transport Firm

NEW YORK, May 23, (P)—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh in his day old role of "business man" in connection with the new Transcontinental Air Transport, Inc., today received the questions of newspapermen as to his plans with a smile, but otherwise was almost as reticent as he was after his good will flight.

Other than that he was prepared to give his position as chairman of the technical committee of the corporation all the time necessary to establish its plans of a two-day plane and train passenger service from coast to coast, he made no definite announcement, only saying he did not expect that work to prevent him from other flying.

Asked if he was planning another flight to Europe, he replied that he was still interested in transatlantic flying and believed it would become an established thing but added that he had no definite plan for such a flight at the present time.

He explained that the work of the technical committee, which he is chairman is to select routes, pilots and airplanes. None of this has been done, he said.

Officers for the new corporation have not yet been taken and Col. Lindbergh said that for the present at least his headquarters would remain with the Daniel Guggenheim Fund for the promotion of aeronautics, Inc., with which he has been associated in an advisory capacity since his flight to Paris.

DETROIT, May 23, (P)—The Ford Motor company has been notified by Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh that he has decided to postpone a projected transatlantic flight by way of Greenland and Iceland for 60 to 90 days, it was announced today at the offices of William B. Mayo, chief engineer of the Ford company. The Ford company is expected to co-operate in the undertaking.

EAST TEXAS C-C HOME DEDICATED

Gift of People of Longview After Meeting of Board of Directors

LONGVIEW, May 23, (P)—The new home of the East Texas Chamber of Commerce, a gift from the people of Longview, was dedicated today after the first meeting of the new board of directors in the home auditorium. Mingling at the service with the new directors, country neighbors, and visitors from all parts of East Texas were 200 delegates to the Texas Press Association convention, whose special train halted at Longview for three hours before continuing to Texarkana.

A new home for the East Texas Chamber of Commerce was offered to the board of directors at a meeting in Dallas in January. Ground was broken the latter part of February, and early in May the structure was completed at a cost approximating $30,000.

The East Texas Chamber of Commerce now finds itself as the holder of one of the finest homes of its kind in the country. The architecture follows that of the Spanish who were the first to establish settlements in this section of the state. The exterior finish in oriental stucco over walls of interlocking tile. Above the second story extends a low parapet, roofed in Spanish tile. Upper and lower windows of the front are fitted with wrought-iron balcony railings, also in the Spanish style. Over each window in the building is a ventilator, assuring proper ventilation of the interior at all times. The building is thirty-eight feet wide and seventy feet long.

RETAIL MERCHANTS ELECT NEW OFFICERS

WICHITA FALLS, May 23, (P)—L. W. Beavens of Fort Worth was elected president of the Retail Merchants Association of Texas at the final joint convention session of that association with the Associated Retail Credit Men of Texas and the Texas Retail Credit Bureau Wednesday morning.

San Benito was selected as the convention city for the three organizations in 1929, by unanimous vote. Invitations were extended by telegram from Fort Worth, Corsicana and Amarillo, but none contested San Benito's request for the next meeting on the convention floor.

Other officers selected for the retail merchants association: J. T. Newsom of Corsicana, Carl Mueller of Austin, H. R. Bone of Sherman, vice presidents.

Hoover Campaign Figures Increased

WASHINGTON, May 23, (P)—Known expenditures on behalf of Herbert Hoover increased to $312,745 today, with the testimony of Claudius H. Huston of Chattanooga and New York, before the senate campaign funds committee that he had collected $32,500 and expended $32,295 to promote the candidacy of the commerce secretary for the Republican presidential nomination.

Huston, who served under Hoover as assistant secretary of commerce for some time, presented his figures after they had spent an hour trying to solve what they regarded as the mystery about "Politics," a weekly publication of this city, which is vigorously opposing Hoover's candidacy.

Senators Slighted By Indiana GOP

INDIANAPOLIS, May 23, (P)—The Republican state convention in opening session today adjourned suddenly shortly after noon without giving United States Senator James E. Watson and Arthur R. Robinson and Governor Ed Jackson an opportunity to speak.

State Chairman Eliza O. Rogers announced that the adjournment was being taken until 2:30 o'clock tomorrow morning on instructions of the program committee.

The action was generally taken as a slap at Governor Jackson, whose presence on the platform had been protested unofficially by some leaders in charge of the convention. The publicity the governor gained as a result of his indictment and conspiracy trial on a charge of conspiracy to commit a felony in an attempt to bribe Senators Watson and Robinson were understood to have withdrawn from the program to relieve some of the delicacy surrounding the situation.

The action was in keeping with the reported agreement among party leaders to prevent Jackson from being named one of the seven delegates at large to the national convention at Kansas City. Neither of the senators will be among the national convention delegates, it was said.

WASHINGTON, May 23, (P)—The new air corps training center at San Antonio, Texas, will be named Randolph field in honor of Captain William M. Randolph, a native of Texas, who lost his life in an airplane crash at Gorman, Texas, last February.

LOWDEN IS FIRM FARM BILL STAND

Had Said Would Not Want Nomination if Party Noncommittal on Relief

OREGON, Ill., May 23, (P)—Former Governor Frank O. Lowden, candidate for the Republican presidential candidacy, when informed that President Coolidge had vetoed the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill, told the Associated Press today he still stands for the entire bill.

"I have declared my position on the bill and that is that I am for it until something is advanced that is better for the farmer," Lowden observed.

The former Illinois executive was at his farm near here.

A few days ago Lowden in a Chicago interview said he had told opponents of the equalization fee of the McNary-Haugen measure that stripping of the proposed legislation of that feature would be like a protective tariff without schedules.

He declared at that time that he would not want the Republican nomination if the party was not committed to farm relief.

WASHINGTON, May 23, (P)—The McNary-Haugen veto ruffled some dispositions in the Western Republican ranks as the senate clerk read the strong language of the president.

"The message indicates," said Senator McNary, "that the president is unsympathetic to the farmer and uninformed as to his problems."

Senator Norbeck, Republican of South Dakota declared that "if the Republican party needs the agricultural states next November as it has in the past, it will be well to keep in mind that no candidate can win unless he has been an aggressor in seeking justice for the farmer."

Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the Democratic leader, said "The veto is surprisingly intemperate in view of the president's temperament."

"The unfortunate message," said Senator McMaster, Republican of South Dakota, "breathes with the spirit of industrialism."

City Pension Act Upheld.
AUSTIN, May 23, (P)—State law authorizing cities to pension retired employees was held valid Wednesday by the supreme court. The Dallas court of civil appeals submitted a question, reciting that W. R. Byrd, in a suit pending against the city of Dallas, seeks to restrain it from paying money to several ex-policemen and one former fire chief.

Sulphur Royalty Must be Paid Despite Shutdown

AUSTIN, May 23 (P)—The American Sulphur Royalties company of Texas is entitled to recover from the Freepore Sulphur company damages for sulphur that would have been produced, under normal circumstances, during a 14 month period when the latter closed down its mine in Freepore, the supreme court held Wednesday.

The Galveston civil appeals court, holding, reversing a district court decision denying damages to the royalties company, was affirmed.

The judgment, if finally entered as recommended, probably would involve millions of dollars.

Stockholders of the royalties company in 1913 sold the mine to the Freepore organization with the understanding that they would get 75 per cent royalties on production.

After the shut down, they sued. The supreme court ruled that the failure of the Freepore company to perform its implied obligation to work the properties justified the American company's contention.

DALLAS, May 23, (P)—Governor Dan Moody was elected by the state Democratic convention as chairman of the 24 delegates at large who will have 1-6 of a vote each in the national convention making 4 votes to add to the 36 from the 13 congressional districts. The delegates at large with Governor Moody are: M. M. Crain, Dallas; Myron G. Blaylock, Marshall; Walter C. Woodward, Coleman; W. A. Tarver, Corsicana; W. A. Keeling, Austin; Thomas H. Ball, Houston; Cone Johnson, Tyler; Jesse H. Jones, Houston; Dr. J. C. Hardy, Belton; Lynch Davidson, Houston; Wright Morrow, Houston; Mrs. A. C. Zehner, Dallas; Mrs. W. Chapman, Stamford; Mrs. Leo Joseph, San Antonio.

Alternate delegates at large are: Mrs. Wilmet Odell, Ft. Worth; Miss Margie Neal, Carthage; Mrs. F. F. Weymouth, Amarillo; Mrs. Hal Greer, Beaumont; Mrs. Jessie Daniel Ames, Georgetown; Mrs. R. L. Bobbitt, Laredo; Mrs. H. H. Sevier, Austin; Mrs. S. P. Brooks, Waco; Mrs. A. Y. Baker, Edinburg; Miss Blake Henderson, Cameron; Mrs. J. C. Houston, Corsicana; Mrs. T. H. Miller, George West; Roger Gillis, Del Rio; R. A. Underwood, Springview; Robert L. Holliday, El Paso; R. M. Keller, Longview; Shearon Moody, Galveston; Dr. W. L. Crosswhite, Waco; Fred Horton, Greenville; S. L. Gill, Raymondville; Ed Howard, Wichita Falls; B. A. Stoffelmeier, Ennis; Dr. S. P. Brooks, Waco; J. D. Sandifer, Abilene.

On motion of Blalock, Judge R. E. Brooks of Houston, W. A. Tarver of Corsicana, Milton West, Wright Morrow of Houston and Mrs. Jane Y. McCollum, secretary of state were named as a committee to select delegates at large.

When the platform committee reported, prolonged cheers greeted the plank on religious toleration as well as the paragraphs scoring "Republican corruption."

The section of the state platform requesting a plank in the national platform unequivocally endorsing prohibition was also cheered vociferously. Tom Love, leader of the ultra dries, stood up on the stage and led the cheering. The appeal in the platform for party regularity regardless of the candidate, however, gave the convention its first big demonstration, the Smith proponents standing up and drowning out the reader in their enthusiasm.

Scenes of confusion and bad feeling prevailed as the convention neared its end after two days. Senator Love had a verbal run-in with Governor Moody on the crowded platform. Intervention of bystanders prevented a threatened encounter and others nearby who resented the senator's accusation of "dirty politics" hurled at Moody. Love was objecting to the fact that efforts had been made to place C. C. Renfro of Dallas, a Smith supporter, on the delegation committee in preference to an ultra dry because the governor was said to have favored Renfro. The latter is secretary of the Texas un instructed delegation movement.

The platform adopted disposes of the question of loyalty to the party candidate, whether wet or dry, in the first paragraph, but in the next paragraph demands enforcement "in both letter and spirit" of every scrap of the federal constitution. Bureaucracy and the Republican administration are attacked and the Republican party is accused of high taxes, extravagance and corruption in high places.

Delegates from the first district are W. J. Pollard of Paris, Grover Sellers of Sulphur Springs; Charles D. Berry of Cooper, J. E. Mattison of Mt. Vernon.

BOMB KILLS NINE IN BUENOS AIRES

Forty-one Injured by Explosion in Italian Consular Building There

BUENOS AIRES, May 23, (P)—Nine persons were killed outright and 41 are known to have been injured in a bomb explosion in the passport bureau on the main floor of the Italian consulate shortly before noon today.

The bomb, which was placed in a wall cabinet in a room where there were three employees working and 20 persons waiting, tore a hole six feet high and four feet wide in the wall.

While it was thought that anti-fascists might have been responsible for the explosion, the police were particularly in the dark as to its origin as there has been no anti-Italian sentiment manifest in recent months.

MOODY IS WINNER OVER TWO GROUPS AT CONVENTION

Vote Against Smith Group After Defeating Move to Instruct Against Smith

ROLLER IS APPLIED TO AL SMITH FORCES

Delegates From First District are Pollard, Sellers, Berry and Mattison

BEAUMONT, May 23, (P)—Sixty men and women weighing a total of 40 votes were delegated tonight by the state Democratic convention to attend the national convention and vote for a dry platform and for a dry presidential candidate as a result of the dramatic vote first one and then the other "extreme" factions of the party in Texas.

Applying the steam roller to Smith for president supporters, Governor Moody's forces defeated a move that would have assured several Smith delegates on the Texas slate after having voted down, with Smith aid, an attempt to instruct the delegation specifically against Governor Smith.

A definite break with the Smith supporters who had helped the Moody group defeat the ultra dry faction for control of the convention came over the manner of choosing the Texas national delegates. The Smith men wanted to let the congressional district delegations choose their own national delegates but the governor "crucifying" himself as he called it, renounced a previous stand for supremacy of the districts and swung a convention majority for a resolution providing for the selection of the delegates by a committee appointed by the chairman. This method assured only dry delegates.

Earlier in the day the convention defeated, 511 to 268, an attempt to instruct against Al Smith by name. The proposal was in an amendment by former Governor O. B. Colquitt, to the platform. The convention also defeated an amendment by Cone Johnson of Tyler to instruct against all wet candidates as advocated by the ultra dry faction headed by State Senator Tom Love.

Scenes of confusion and bad feeling prevailed as the convention neared its end after two days. Senator Love had a verbal run-in with Governor Moody on the crowded platform. Intervention of bystanders prevented a threatened encounter and others nearby who resented the senator's accusation of "dirty politics" hurled at Moody. Love was objecting to the fact that efforts had been made to place C. C. Renfro of Dallas, a Smith supporter, on the delegation committee in preference to an ultra dry because the governor was said to have favored Renfro. The latter is secretary of the Texas un instructed delegation movement.

Bureaucracy and the Republican administration are attacked and the Republican party is accused of high taxes, extravagance and corruption in high places.

Delegates from the first district are W. J. Pollard of Paris, Grover Sellers of Sulphur Springs; Charles D. Berry of Cooper, J. E. Mattison of Mt. Vernon.

Report Cotton Futures Measure

WASHINGTON, May 23, (P)—The bill by Senator Smith, Democrat, South Carolina, providing additional regulation in cotton futures trading and designed to prohibit market manipulation was ordered reported favorably today by the senate agriculture committee.

The measure was ordered reported with only three members of the committee present but Senator Smith had the proxies of six other members who approved the favorable action.

Senator Caraway, Democrat, Arkansas, arriving in the committee room immediately after the action, declared that "any senator who reads the bill carefully will fight it on the floor of the senate."

Caraway has declared the measure a "perfect gambler's bill" and said that it undoubtedly would meet with the approval of William L. Clayton, Houston, Texas, cotton merchant, who appeared before the committee during lengthy hearings.

The LOW-DOWN

By Jack Lancaster

Title, "The Blue Danube."
Star, Leatrice Joy.
Theater, Plaza.
Although the credit lines list Leatrice Joy as the star of "The Blue Danube" and we have so reported her at the head of this review, it is our personal opinion that Nils Asther easily walks away with first honors. This chap is rapidly gaining real screen importance and we haven't a doubt but that he will be given stellar position in a number of next season's releases. He's rather handsome, in a Ronald Colman sort of way; possessed of abundant youth, a fascinating smile and a pair of very expressive eyes. In fact, if we were of the father six we have an idea that Mr. Nils Asther would be the sort of a chap for whom we would, quite unenthusiastically, but nevertheless firmly, set our cap. And the happiest part about Asther's personality is that it earns the respect of male theater patrons, the while Asther's romantic smile, eyes and grace are winning the hearts of the ladies. From which you would gather that Nils Asther is quite some boy, as indeed he is.

But to return to "The Blue Danube." Against the banks of this historic river is laid a plot of rather novel dramatic appeal. Asther, a young Austrian baron, meets and falls quite hopelessly in love with Leatrice Joy, the daughter of a widowed innkeeper. Leatrice returns his love in full measure, even to the extent of defying her mother, who warns her that an aristocrat can have no honest intentions toward a girl of such humble origin. Joseph Schildkraut is a hunchback whose life, by word and deed, is one of constant devotion to Leatrice. Yet he, who gains so much of your sympathy, occupies the role of villain.

For perhaps the first time in our memory we found ourselves drawn by bonds of sympathy, pity or admiration to each character in a play that was frankly dramatic. Even the old hunchback, intent upon marrying his daughter to a title, was a very human sort of person, and his daughter, a placid, wooden creature, seemed so evidently what she was that we felt a trifle sorry that her plans for matrimony could not have been realized by the injection of a secondary hero into the story.

Leatrice Joy did not appear to be quite up to standard in this production and, as a consequence, we will merely say that the fire that characterized her earlier offerings was entirely absent in "The Blue Danube." What a role for Janet Gaynor!

The Paramount new reel, now on exhibition at the Plaza, shows some close-ups and the take-off of that ill-fated plane, "The Gull." You will recall that this plane cracked up in the course of its trial trip, killing its pilot-inventor. While the screen shows scenes of the blood-spattered wreck, the actual scenes showing the smash-up have been deleted. We are rather grateful for this, for the scenes of Lockhart's death, as shown in last week's Pathe News (at the Grand theater), still cause us unpleasant dreams at night.

FLY-TOX NECESSARY

WARMS ARE LESS FATAL THAN COMMON INSECTS.
"Flies have caused more deaths than all wars," says Major Ransom of the Medical Department of the United States Army. "Since the fly came into the world it has been synonymous with epidemics of pestilence and disease." But with Fly-Tox it is a very simple easy matter to rid the house of flies—to keep it fresh and clean, free of insect taint. Fly-Tox is the scientific insecticide developed at Mellon Institute of Industrial Research by Rex Fellowship. Simple instructions for killing ALL household insects on blue labeled bottles. PARIS FARMER TALKS

"Since Taking Orgatone My Wife Shows No Signs or Her Old Troubles," He Says.

W. R. Woodall, residing at High, Texas, and who is a well known farmer of this section, in a conversation with the Orgatone representative in the Corner Drug Store a few days ago said:
"I've just come in to get five more bottles of Orgatone for my wife. She has already taken one bottle and her improvement is simply wonderful. My wife had suffered for several months from a disordered stomach and gradually got worse and about two months ago she noticed a distressing feeling of gas after eating and it caused painful headaches to come on. The gas seemed to make her very nervous and she would lose sleep on account of it. She couldn't digest what she ate very well, and early in the morning she would often get up sick at her stomach and sometimes would vomit.
"Her condition got so serious that she would have sharp shooting pains in her shoulders and back. I worried a lot about her till she started taking Orgatone. Then she began to improve at once and I became more hopeful of her recovery. She sleeps like a top every night now and constipation or those irritable pains through her back and shoulders don't bother her any more, in fact, she shows no sign of her old trouble. Her nerves are quiet now and she eats better and everything seems to agree with her and gives her no distress afterwards. She is stronger and has more life and energy than before and says she feels more like working now than she has in a long time. We know from actual experience what Orgatone will do and are telling all our friends about it whenever we see them."

WURZBACH FACES POLITICAL BATTLE

Entry of Two Democrats to Make Hot Race in Fourteenth District

SAN ANTONIO, May 23. (P)—Congressman Harry M. Wurzbach of Seguin, Texas, only Republican representative from Texas probably will face one of the hardest fights in his career this year, if he keeps the fourteenth Congressional district Republican.

Two Democrats have taken the field and the party is hopeful that it will be able to overthrow Wurzbach, if it is a Democratic year elsewhere.

Judge Augustus McCloskey of Bexar county was first in the field and A. D. Rogers of Alamo Heights recently entered the fight, promising a platform that would solve the agricultural problems of Texas.

Wurzbach, who is engaged in a struggle within his own party against the faction led by R. B. Creager of Brownsville, and Eugene Nolte of Seguin, must win the nomination before he can oppose the Democratic candidate. As he controls the district organization however, he is considered assured of the nomination.

In addition to Nolte, Wurzbach has one other prominent Republican enemy in his own district, State Representative Reno Eickenrodt of Seguin, the only Republican in the lower house at Austin. Wurzbach's control of his own neighborhood was displayed in county conventions, however, when neither Eickenrodt or Nolte gained seats as delegates from his precinct.

ILL-FATED SUBMARINE IS TO BE DESTROYED

BOSTON, May 23. (P)—The submarine S-4, aboard which 10 officers and men planned to their deaths off Provincetown, Mass., last December in one of the most dramatic tragedies of navy history, is destined for the navy's junk yard.

While official announcement of the disposition of the S-4 has not yet been made, it is regarded as certain that plans to recondition the submarine and restore it to active service will be abandoned.

The S-4 has been tied up at one of the wharves of the navy yard since she was brought here from Provincetown on pontoons, the last bodies removed from her hull, a great hole in her side patched up and the ship refloated.

Sentiment has played a part in the navy's decision to abandon the vessel, no doubt. Men would not want to go to sea in a ship about which clustered such memories as those of the S-4.

There are economic reasons, too. To recondition the submarine would cost at least a million dollars. The S-4's original cost, when she was built in 1916, was only a million and a half. And the S-4 never could match the larger and more capable submarines of today.

So the S-4, from which Lieut. Graham N. Fitch hammered out his departing code messages through three grim days of last winter, begging rescue for the six men entombed alive in the forward compartment, is to become but a dismal relic.

The S-51, another ill-fated unit of the navy's submarine fleet, came to a similar end. Raised from the bottom of the ocean off Rhode Island, where she took 33 men to their deaths after colliding with the steamship City of Rome, the S-51 was towed to Brooklyn navy yard. There her shattered bulk still remains.

MELTAGE
and DRAINAGE
are absolutely essential to perfect refrigeration . . .

Did you know that a well-designed refrigerator filled with ice actually breathes? Yes, much like we ourselves breathe.

The air inside a properly constructed, well iced refrigerator circulates freely. It absorbs impurities and carries them to the ice cake. There they are deposited on and absorbed by the film of moisture on the ice, and carried off in meltage through the outlet; just as impurities are taken up by our lungs and eliminated through the windpipe by exhalation.

Only ice in a good refrigerator provides this constant purifying process, so necessary to the protection of delicate foods and flavors.

Refrigerator Check-Up Week gives you an opportunity to find out whether your refrigerator is breathing properly. Let us help you. Do not delay another day to investigate this important safeguard to the health of your family and the economy of your food budget.

Is your refrigerator properly insulated? Is it the right size for your family? Does the air circulate freely? Are you so placing foods as to insure best preservation and prevent mixing of tastes and odors? Do the rabbits fit snugly? How about the gaskets?

The answers to these questions and others of equal importance will tell you whether or not you are getting the most effective results from your ice. Let us help you determine how you can improve your present refrigerator or, if you should have a new one, what kind to buy. There is no charge for this advisory service. No obligation on your part. Call, write or phone for particulars.

THE CITIZEN IS INDICTED

THE great majority of average law-abiding citizens who watched with interest the report of the Lamar county grand jury to observe who were billed found, by virtue of the written recommendations, that they themselves were indicted, generally speaking, for laxity in jury service. The grand jurors spent much time in investigating the comparatively small number of convictions in liquor law violations and found that it was apathetic trial juries and not prosecuting officers who were to blame.

This statement is cause for serious reflection of those who are constantly upbraiding law enforcement officers. It is also a challenge for the rest of the citizens, whose interest in law enforcement is so passive that they have not even given any consideration to the question, to discharge individual responsibility as to jury service.
All these stand indicted by the findings of the grand jury as surely as if true bills had been returned on an hypothetical case of shirking the duties of citizenship.

The burden of the grand jury's contention is that the trial juries do not assess verdicts of guilty in many cases where the evidence is sufficient to convict under the law. It states specifically that "trial juries are more easily influenced to acquit in an intoxicating liquor case than the average felony." The grand jury adds that it can not say whether or not the penalty which is to be imposed causes this situation or whether it is a disregard of the testimony which is brought to a trial jury.

If there is greater laxness in jury decisions in liquor cases than in others, then the matter does take on a more serious aspect, for convictions are relatively few enough in other and more serious felony offenses. It follows that those who sit on juries and those who deliberately dodge jury service are delinquent in this important exercise of constitutional duty.

One remedy for failure to obtain convictions in offenses of the lesser degree is to inflict more generally the higher penalty the law provides in the major penalties when the evidence is inescapably incriminating to the defendant.

WE'VE MADE A MACHINE AND MUST CONTROL IT

PRESIDENT LEWIS E. PIERSON of the United States Chamber of Commerce tells members of his organization that the United States is facing a new and important task.

"It must prove," he says, "that production is its servant and not its master. It must demonstrate that it has the will and skill to control the machine it has created."

During the last century and a half the whole organization of human society has undergone a complete change. The introduction of steam engines, followed by electricity and gasoline motors, effected a revolution more sweeping than any change that had come in a thousand years. Now, as President Pierson says, the time has come when we must examine the new order very closely and see whether we can make it yield the most possible good for all members of society.

In the old days the chief problem of the common man was to escape from political oppression and get a voice in his own government. After long centuries of struggle, with the American and French revolutions as a climax, he succeeded. And then the industrial revolution gave him a new problem.

Freedom from that chief need was economic freedom. All-powerful in political affairs, he began to discover that that did not necessarily mean much, after all. He could elect his national officials and make his own laws, but he was at the mercy of the men with money—the men who owned the mills, the railroads, the mines and the banks. He had won one fight only to find a new situation that made his victory hollow. Having gained political freedom, he now had to win economic liberty.

That is the issue that faces the world today;
and that is one of the issues implied in President Pierson's warning. We have developed a marvelous system for making and transporting things; we must see to it that it remains our servant and does not devour us.

That does not mean that we must all turn socialists, or that we must hedge business around with a million governmental regulations. It does mean, though, that it is supremely important to the nation that industry enlist in its service the very best minds the country has. The director's room is growing more significant than the legislative chamber. The future lies largely in the hands of the business man. He has a tremendous responsibility. President Pierson's speech is an encouraging indication that business is beginning to recognize it.

EUROPEAN INDUSTRY

If you think that industrial Europe has entirely recovered from the effects of the World War, consider these figures presented by the foreign information department of the Bankers Trust Co.,
of New York.

British blast furnaces have shown an improvement in pig iron production, turning out 592,690 tons during March as compared with 650,600 tons in February. Yet in 1913 the monthly average was 855,000 tons. Present production, therefore, is still 25 per cent below pre-war levels.

To a nation that leans on its industries as heavily as England does, that margin is important. The World War, verily, was an expensive undertaking for everybody involved. It will be many years before workers and employers have ceased to pay for it.

A PROBLEM IN ANTIQUES

A NEW ENGLAND woman has brought suit against an antique collector. She charges that he induced her to sell him, for $3000, an antique table, when he knew at the time that the table was worth $20,000.

If she wins her suit, antique collectors everywhere will quake in their shoes. The whole game is finding a valuable antique and inducing
the owners to sell it for a fraction of its value.
The antique collector who, stumbling on a Sheraton highboy in a New England farmhouse, voluntarily told the owner what it was worth before offering to buy it, has yet to be discovered.

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER, NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON, May 23.—Probably the funniest thing that has developed in this political campaign is the distinct likelihood that the Hon. William Scott Vare of Philadelphia will be credited in the pages of history as the president-maker of 1928.

Perhaps it's not so funny after all. Perhaps Mr. Vare is just being made an instrument of Divine Providence, for, as everyone knows, the Almighty works in mysterious ways. His wonders do perform.

It's the same Mr. Vare, of course, who runs that notorious political machine in Philadelphia and who wasn't considered sweet and clean enough to be allowed to enter the Senate.

NOW this is how Mr. Vare enters the picture
as a president-maker:

Inevitable readers of these dispatches will recall that many months ago, when people first began to wonder who was Andrew Mellon's presidential choice and to assert that Mellon would hold the balance of nominating power, your correspondent irreverently suggested that Andy could not get to first base with a candidate unless he first enlisted the support of Mr. Vare. Someone, it was suggested, ought to find out what Mr.
Vare was thinking, for it seemed very likely that Mr. Vare would be able to tell Mr. Mellon just whom Mellon was going to support.

Mr. Vare and his Philadelphia machine had beaten Mellon and his machine when Mr. Vare decided in 1926 that he would be senator instead of George Wharton Pepper, the Mellon incumbent and candidate. The Mellon machine had to seek a truce quickly. It was able to promise Mr.
Vare much help where he needed it worst when it appeared that the Senate doubtless would refuse to let him in after his election.

Mr. Vare agreed to play ball and Senator
David A. Reed, the Mellon senator who had said so many extremely mean things about the uncouth Mr. Vare in the primary campaign, was forced to break his neck trying to get Mr. Vare in.

No senator ever had such a distasteful task, but his heart was in it, for Mr. Vare threatened to run for Reed's seat if the Mellon crowd didn't help him out.

At any rate Mellon obviously had to divide political control of Pennsylvania with Boss Vare with the threat that Boss Vare might squeeze him out entirely almost any time. Vare, meanwhile, knew that the Mellons would try to unhorse him sooner or later if he didn't beat them to it.
When Reed failed to save his senate seat, he was free to do as he pleased.

Along came the recent Pennsylvania state convention. Politicians all over the country waited breathlessly to see whether Mellon would say anything about the presidential candidates. The fact is, he had no idea of doing anything of the sort—his prepared speech mentioned no candidate.

But on the ground he discovered that Boss Vare had managed to rig the convention against him. Perhaps the Vare crowd had a resolution all drawn up, endorsing Hoover, and was prepared to pass it, as one apparently good source has it.

At any rate there is no doubt at all that Mellon found Boss Vare and his pals possessed of a whip hand. They were all set to grab his leadership whether by the simple expedient of coming out for the popular Mr. Hoover or by other means.
The old boy, having no candidate of his own ready to trot out—since Coolidge and Hughes had failed him—was in no position to fight. He was simply pushed into an endorsement of Hoover. All informed persons seem to agree on that.

THE credit, of course, goes to Boss Vare. The man Pennsylvania supported, the political sharps had agreed, could get the nomination, and Mr. Mellon himself said that the nominee would "in all human probability" be elected president. It isn't anything to cheer about when the presidency seems in the hands of a small group of Pennsylvania politicians who spent $3,000,000 in the 1926 senatorial primary and who are about as sordid as politicians come, but—

Of course Mr. Hoover, the apparent beneficiary, isn't to blame because Boss Vare is a more powerful boss than the Mellon bosses. Nor did he seek Vare's support. He might have done very well without it. Hoover and Vare are as far apart in nearly every respect as the two poles. No one supposes for a moment that any love for Hoover inspired Vare. No one supposes that Vare wouldn't forsake Hoover promptly if it would help him beat the Mellon crew.

No one supposes that Vare will be very popular around the White House if Hoover is nominated and elected. But in politics you have to take what help you can get. And you can't get away from the fact that the red-necked Mr. Vare has been responsible for one of the biggest boosts
Mr. Hoover has had to date.

In an age of flying and radio, it is typical of politics that it must still have its ears to the ground.—Corsicana Sun.

KEEP YOUR EYE ON CHARLES "RED" LUCAS Cincinnati Reds

No one outside the fans in Cincinnati and the players on the club have given Red Lucas much of a tumble, so there were some brows lifted last season when he was mentioned as a candidate for the most valuable player prize. Who is he? This was not a malicious question because with the Donohues, the Rixeys, the Mays and the Luques, Lucas never was given proper recognition for his pitching.

ter the third and held the enemy scoreless in the fourth and fifth, being materially helped in this respect by Stagner, who threw out Reynolds and Hutchison in each inning trying to steal. It ain't done on "Old Reliable."

The existing deadlock was broken in the fifth when Fowler got his second hit of the game, a single over second after Stagner had been thrown out by Reynolds. Sowers beat out an infield hit, but was forced by Dockery, Fowler pulling up at third. Fugler, who had twice driven in scores, again was the right man in the right place with a single over first Dockery being thrown out at third on a perfect throw by Williams, Oiler right fielder.

The Oilers again tied it up in the sixth. Falk hit a short fly, which Sevier camped under but dropped. Fugler retrieving the ball and throwing Falk out at second. Williams, catcher-outfielder, got hold of one of Fowler's fast ones and lifted it over the right field wall, to tie the score.

The Colts took the lead in the seventh and it looked as if they were "in" for the game. Fowler hit over second and was forced by Sowers, bringing up Fugler, who had already put the Colts in the

SPORT NOTES

It sure looks good to see "Old Reliable" Porter Stagner back there with that rifle arm and wise old noodle. Base runners won't take any liberties with that old boy's arm.

Petit, the starry lefthander who was injured in the game of Tuesday, stated that he will be able to get back in the game in a few days. His finger was fractured and is causing considerable pain, but he expects to be ready for work within a week. That's good news.

Manager Bowman is hiring 'em and firing 'em daily in an effort to get a winning combination. Maybe the breaks of the game will turn the Colt way some day and when it does there will be joy among the faithful fans.

Even with a losing ball club Paris is drawing more people than any town on the circuit, according to the ball players. Given a winner the bugs would flock out there.

The first half is gone, but Bowman hopes to get his gang lined up and ready for the second half. The addition of Stagner was a

SPOTS BEFORE EYES

Miner Had Dark Spots Before Eyes. Felt Dull, Tired, Achy. Doesn't Get Down Any More.

Somerset, Ky.—Telling how he had known of the merit of Theodor's Black-Draught since he was a boy, Mr. Albert Garland, of this city, recently said:
 "I used to work in the mines, but lost quite a bit of time on account of the sick spells I had. I would get to having a bad taste in my mouth, and a very dull, tired feeling and ache. I would have dark spots in front of my eyes, and I would be so dizzy I would stagger like I was drunk.
 "I took medicine, but didn't seem to get any better.
 "My mother told me to try Black-Draught, which I did, and after a few doses I felt much better. Now I take it as soon as I feel the least bad, and I don't get down. I certainly can say that it has done more for me than any other medicine I have ever taken.
 "I never get without Black-Draught. If I go on a visit, I take a package along in my suit-case. My health is better now than it has been in years, and I believe it is the use of Black-Draught that did it."

Black-Draught is prepared from medicinal roots and herbs, of highest quality. Try it.

NEW ORLEANS, May 23.—

Heavy rains in some sections of the eastern belt and also in a more limited way in a portion of the north central belt, were responsible for a very steady cotton market early today. After scoring moderate gains the price fell off rather gradually under selling stimulated by the fact that the government's weekly crop review was not as unfavorable as expected. In the later trading selling increased because of the noon reports from the interior, indicating generally dry weather and because of the forecast of fair weather for the greater part of the belt.

While traders interpreted the weekly reports as being not as bad as expected, it must be admitted that the reports were bad enough, as they again mentioned the lateness of the crop and the general backwardness of the crop, spoke of poor stands and of widespread necessity of replanting and, in the case of Texas, made the first mention thus far this season of damage to young cotton by boll weevils, this occurring in the south where the cotton has been up for some time and is old enough to put on squares. We think it should be borne in mind that a few days of good weather will not repair the damage which has been done. Crop prospects and that even good weather cannot make an early crop out of this late crop. The crop remains on the defensive and the market will quickly respond to any new signs of bad weather.

Ex-Bandit And Young College Graduate Oppose Japanese China Advance

Above at the left is General Chiang Kai-Shek, youthful commander-in-chief of the Cantonese or Nationalist forces in South China, a college graduate. On the right is Marshal Chang Tso-Lin, fiery dictator of North China and friend of foreign concessionaires, who began life as a bandit chieftain and has risen to millions. In the circle is Baron Tanaka, Japan's premier, who ordered Japanese troops into Shantung and below Japanese soldiers are shown on the march.

This map shows the scene of the present fighting in China, Japanese landing parties have forced the rival Chinese armies to clear the Shantung railroad, from Tsinan to Tientsin, on the Shantung peninsula where Japanese concessionaires have many millions invested in industries. Japanese gunboats are also proceeding up the Yangtze river from Shanghai. The southern troops under General Chiang Kai-Shek, were pushing the northern armies back across the Yellow River when the Japanese intervened, announcing that they intended to restore law and order in Shantung.

SHANGHAI, May 23 (NEA)—In the eyes of most Americans, all Chinese are alike, but that mistaken opinion is a hang-over of the days before college educations, youth movements and the New China that emerged from the overthrow of the Manchu emperors who had ruled for centuries.

No American, living a half a world away, can imagine a greater contrast than that existing between General Chiang Kai-Shek and Marshal Chang Tso-Lin, rival Chinese war lords, who, it is reported, may forget their bitter enmity and combine against the invading Japanese in Shantung.

Youthful General Chiang, still in his 30s, is a college graduate, the husband of a Chinese girl who was educated at Wellesley, a man who speaks seven languages. A commander-in-chief of the Cantonese, or Nationalist forces of South China, he lives in almost simple poverty.

Former Bandit. The grizzled Chang Tso-Lin, dictator of Northern China, is a former bandit chieftain who owns a string of banks, railroads, industries and newspapers and has accumulated a fortune of many millions, despite the fact that he can not write and is barely able to read. He has eight wives and 32 children.

General Chiang Kai-Shek is leading the nationalist forces of the south. The veteran Marshal Chang Tso-Lin rules with an iron hand in North China.

The war between them has found Chiang Kai-Shek leading the college-trained, educated youth of China who wish to free their country from foreign domination, abolish one-sided treaties, make the Chinese republic a reality and place China its place with other nations of the world. He has accepted aid from Soviet Russia.

Friendly to Foreigners. Chang Tso-Lin is friendly to concessions granted foreign powers and is said to harbor secret desires of re-establishing a monarchy with himself as emperor of all China. He rules North China from a palatial palace in Peking, has absolute authority in dispensing concessions to foreigners in his domain and is a foe of the nationalists.

He declares that the Nationalist armies of Chiang Kai-Shek are being financed and inspired by Russian communists.

Chang Tso-Lin blames China's present troubles on college-trained Chinese who have returned home after being educated abroad. He says they are stirring up China needlessly with false ideals of independence and that China must continue concessions to foreign nations in order to exist. He represents the old order in nearly every respect, except that he employs airplanes, machine guns and other modern instruments of warfare.

Emerging from brigandage about the time of the Russo-Japanese

$7,000,000 for charity in famine districts and to pay the back salaries of thousands of Chinese school teachers.

Chang's Iron Hand.

Cold, cunning and cruel, Chang Tso-Lin has ruled North China with an iron hand. There has never been a run on any of his banks, for the simple reason that he announced that he would cut off the head of the first man who started it.

General Chiang Kai-Shek, the youthful commander of the nationalist forces in South China, began life as a bandit boy to a merchant and later enlisted in the emperor's army. He won a scholarship in a government military school, made an enviable record there and then went to Japan for a college education.

When the emperor was overthrown, Chiang, like many other young Chinese, returned to China to fight for the new republic. His bravery and daring won him rapid promotions and he rapidly ascended to power, despite his youth.

Chiang is a Buddhist but last December he was married by Christian ceremony to Miss Milling Soong, a Wellesley college graduate and sister of Madame Sun Yat-Sen. He had divorced his first wife, married by Chinese ceremony, by the simple Chinese custom of publicly announcing that the marriage no longer existed.

Attacked as having had two other wives, he replied that the latter were merely concubines.

Chiang Kai-Shek's victorious forces were chasing Chang Tso-Lin's armies northward and threatening the capture of Peking when the Japanese intervened to restore order in Shantung where they have millions invested.

New York Comedy Success Will Be Presented Here By Charles F. Horner

The enterprise of Charles F. Horner has secured for Paris the New York success, "Tommy," for the Premier attraction here this season, following closely on its phenomenal success in New York where it remained and did capacity business at the Elting Theatre for almost a year. "Tommy" is the work of two young dramatists, Howard Lindsay and Bert Robinson, and its success has lifted them to the foremost ranks of American playwrights.

"Tommy" is a comedy dealing with one angle of American life, told with freshness and a never lagging humor that misses it, head and shoulders, above the majority of modern comedies.

The story revolves about Marie Thurbur and Tommy Mills. Tommy's consideration for the elder Thurburs, and their persistence in crying aloud his virtues to their daughter, turn her interest from him to Bernard, who has a car, and a certain 'go' lacking in Tommy's set-up. To make matters still worse, Tommy sells himself land he owns and Mrs. and Mrs. Thurbur decide—not without cause—that he has taken in the information concerning a plot of property Mr. Thurbur has been trying to sell and used it to his own advantage. As a result they command him never to enter the door of their home again.

Then Uncle Dave—one of the most delightful characters in the comedy—takes a hand. He advises Tommy to revolt to assert himself more, to think less of the others and more of his own interests. He slyly advises Bernard that the one with which Bernard can ingratiate himself into the Thurbur family. He actually stops Marie and Bernard when they are about to elope.

And at this juncture Tommy appears on the scene. To describe what follows would be to spoil half the charm of seeing this comedy. But this much may be added—"Tommy" is a clean, wholesome play, the kind of a play you want to take every member of your family to see.

"Tommy" will be presented in Paris on Wednesday, June 13 during Chautauqua Week.

Twelve high class attractions may be seen at less than 25c each when a season ticket is bought for $2.50. Children's tickets are $1 and student's tickets, $1.50.
